breach of the peace.

There was a Saturday night party at the Stevenson home in what is known as the new village at Goodyear about two weeks ago and that friends were there from Goodyear and from Putnam. An accordion figured largely in furnishing entertainment of a musical nature and there was root beer to drink. The party lasted until about 230 Sunday morning and the upshot of the formality of mem-bers of the party wishing each other good night as they parted, out in the good night as they parted, out in the yard, led a woman neighbor to enter a complaint against Stevenson, who was represented in court by Attorney Harry E. Back. Stevenson and his friends who were at the party and in court denied that they had made any undue disturbines outside the home and that there was little excuse for his being haled mo court. It was announced Thursday by Treas-urer Clifford H. Starkweather, of The Danielson Trust company that the deposits in its savings department, started in November of last year, had with the opening of August passed the $200,000 mark, another proof that the people of Danielson and vicinity are still able to lay by something for a rainy day not withstanding the constant cry of adverse business conditions and what not. Neary a quarter of a million dollars in sav ings gathered in nine months by one of Danielson's banks is not so bad, and does not speak of adversity for this community or others hereabouts.

Nothing more despicable has come out of Oneco than the instruation that a man will have to be Irish to get the Knights of Columbus vote for United States senator in Connecticut this fall. Incidentally, the members who are of Irish descent in the Enights of Columbus in eastern Connecticut are so far outnumbered by other nationalities as to be practically submerged. And, fur thermore, Oneco pencil-pushers and all others, are hereby informed that a check of the Knights of Columbus membership fit is capable of hauling the steamer at least about the central portions of the borough, where it is most apt to be needed in case of emergency, and that establishes the fact that the fire department is now entirely independent of horses in getting all of its apparatus to fires. There is satisfaction in this for, it will be recalled, there have been times since horses became fewer about the McLean, nor any other political candidates now hen it has been difficult to get the necessary number to make a quick. necessary number to make a quick Columbus as for or against him on the ponse to alarms.
